MESSAGE FROM THE OFFICE OF THE CITY MAYOR

CITY OF MANILA

My sincere congratulations to the officers and members of the Junior Chamber International Senate Manila as you mark another year of leadership and service through your Induction and Turnover Ceremonies.

Organizations like JCI Senate Manila play a quiet but critical role in strengthening our civic culture. By bringing together leaders who value integrity, continuity, and service beyond title or position, you help ensure that public life is guided not just by ambition, but by responsibility. Your theme, "DRIVEN @47," speaks to a mindset that is very much needed today—one that builds on momentum, learns from experience, and pushes forward with purpose.

As we work to restore trust in institutions and raise the standards of governance in Manila, partnerships with civic organizations such as yours matter. Leadership does not end with office; it endures through mentorship, example, and sustained engagement with the community. I commend your commitment to strengthening participation, fostering unity, and contributing meaningfully to nation-building.

May this new chapter inspire renewed energy, clearer direction, and deeper service to the Filipino people.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATOR

REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES
TWENTIETH CONGRESS

My warmest congratulations to JCI Senate Manila on your 47th Induction and Turnover Ceremonies, guided by the inspiring theme, Driven at 47.

For nearly five decades, JCI Senate Manila proves that service and brotherhood do not fade with time. They endure because people choose to show up and keep working. To be driven, which means there is a fire within, a clear sense of purpose that pushes us to act and to serve. At a time when our country faces complex and demanding challenges, this kind of leadership is both timely and necessary.

I am confident that the new set of officers will continue to raise the bar for the organization and bring public service closer to more people and communities. As you take on this responsibility, I urge you to keep building strong networks and, more importantly, to pass on the JCI spirit. It teaches us to listen, understand, and se the world through the eyes of others so our work remains meaningful and honest.

May this new chapter strengthen your resolve and, together, let us serve the entire nation.

Mabuhay ang JCI Senate manila, and you remain Driven at 47 and beyond!

MESSAGE FROM THE
NATIONAL PRESIDENT
JCI SENATE PHILIPPINES

To the Officers and Members of JCI Manila Senate,

Warmest congratulations as you celebrate your 47th Induction and Turnover Ceremonies—a milestone that reflects not merely the passage of years, but the enduring strength of leadership, fellowship, and service that defines JCI Manila Senate.

For forty-seven years, this chapter has remained a cornerstone of the JCI movement—shaping leaders who serve with conviction, lead with wisdom, and remain steadfast to the values that bind us as Senators. Your legacy is built on trust, continuity, and an unwavering commitment to excellence.

As JCI Manila moves forward with the immense responsibility of hosting the 2026 JCI World Congress in Clark, Pampanga, the global community once again looks to your chapter with confidence. This historic undertaking is a testament to the strong organizational culture, disciplined leadership, and collective resolve that JCI Manila and its Senate have long been known for. Behind every successful world-class endeavor stands a Senate that provides guidance, stability, and institutional memory—roles you continue to fulfill with distinction.

The theme "DRIVEN @47" powerfully captures this defining moment. It speaks of a chapter propelled by experience, united by purpose, and energized by a vision that extends beyond borders. True leadership is often shaped quietly—in thoughtful dialogue, in decisive moments, and in the backroom meetings where trust is built and the future of the organization is carefully forged.

On a personal note, my relationship with JCI Manila is deeply rooted in friendship and shared service. My long-standing bond with Past President papa Cecilio Pedro, my kumpadre since 1995, and my close friendship with Past President papa Boydee Dizon, along with many of your past presidents, were strengthened during my service as JCI World Vice President and JCI World GLC. These experiences allowed me to witness firsthand the depth of leadership, unity, and quiet strength that define JCI Manila.

I also extend my heartfelt congratulations to Senate President Armand S. Valencia as he leads JCI Manila Senate in 2026. Under his stewardship, I am confident that the Senate will continue to be a steady pillar of support—guiding, mentoring, and empowering the chapter as it rises to meet global expectations with confidence and excellence.

As you usher in a new set of officers, may the wisdom of the past guide the energy of the present, and may your shared vision inspire future generations of Senators to serve with integrity, humility, and heart.

On behalf of the JCI Senate Philippines, I salute JCI Manila Senate for 47 years of distinguished service, enduring brotherhood, and visionary leadership. May you remain DRIVEN—not only to succeed, but to leave a legacy worthy of the generations yet to come.

Congratulations, and onward—united, resolute, and ready for the world.

LEADERSHIP IN TRUST

THE HISTORY OF JCI SENATE MANILA

by JCI Senator Reginald T. Yu

JCI Manila Senators at the 2012
November High Grand Reunion and Fellowship

In the life of any institution that endures, there comes a moment when its history reveals more than the sum of its accomplishments. It reveals character. JCI Senate Manila is such an institution. For forty-seven years, it has stood as a steady presence in Philippine civic life — formed not by accident, nor by ambition alone, but by a shared conviction that leadership, when grounded in service, carries an obligation beyond the self.

The Senate was born out of fellowship. Its founders — men and women shaped by the Junior Chamber movement — sought a place where friendships forged in youthful idealism could continue into maturity. They envisioned a circle of equals, bound not by rank or title, but by common experience and shared values. What they created, however, grew far beyond its original intent. Over time, JCI Senate Manila evolved from a fraternal gathering into a disciplined force for public good — one that understood that experience carries responsibility, and that leadership, once earned, does not retire.

History teaches that societies often place their faith in leadership during moments of uncertainty. Again and again, we return to the belief that principled individuals — properly formed and guided by conscience — can navigate complexity and inspire progress. JCI Senate Manila stands firmly within this tradition. Its ethos is inseparable from the legacy of Junior Chamber International, the country's premier leadership development organization, from which it drew its earliest lessons in governance, accountability, and civic duty.

As the years passed, the Senate distinguished itself not by rhetoric, but by action. Fellowship remained central, yet it was fellowship with purpose — translated into programs, initiatives, and sustained engagement with the communities it served. The organization learned, as enduring institutions do, that credibility is built slowly, through consistency and quiet perseverance. Recognition followed, not as an aim, but as a consequence. Today, JCI Senate Manila is widely regarded as the most dynamic and most awarded JCI Senate chapter in the Philippines.

What sets the Senate apart is not merely its record, but its continuity. Leadership within its ranks is understood as stewardship — temporary in authority, permanent in responsibility. Generations of Senators have carried forward the same guiding principle: that service does not diminish with age or accomplishment, but deepens.

In this way, JCI Senate Manila has become more than an organization. It is a living chronicle of civic commitment — a reminder that the true measure of leadership lies not in prominence, but in impact; not in titles held, but in values sustained. Its legacy endures in the lives it has touched, the standards it has upheld, and the quiet assurance that service, faithfully rendered, shapes the course of communities and the character of nations.

As the years passed, the Senate distinguished itself not by rhetoric, but by action...

HOW FELLOWSHIP BECAME STEWARDSHIP

The beginnings of what would become the most distinguished JCI Senate organization in the Philippines were neither grand nor ceremonial. They began, as many enduring institutions do, with a small gathering of individuals who shared a common past and an unspoken sense of responsibility for the future.

On the evening of September 2, 1979, JCI Senator Amelito R. Mutuc opened his home in Forbes Park to a group of former National Presidents and past leaders of the Manila Jaycees. The occasion was informal — a dinner among old friends whose years in the Junior Chamber had shaped their values, sharpened their leadership, and bound them through shared experience. Yet beneath the ease of conversation lay a larger purpose. These were men who understood that leadership, once earned, does not simply end with a term of office.

What emerged from that evening was more than a reunion. It was the quiet beginning of the Manila Jaycees Senate — an organization founded on fellowship, sustained by trust, and united by a commitment to serve Manila and its people. The group recognized that the bonds forged in youth could judgment, and steady leadership to the community.

To be named a JCI Senator is to receive a distinction of rare standing within the Jaycee movement. It is not awarded lightly. The honor signifies exceptional service at the local, national, or international level, and it carries with it an enduring responsibility. Across the world, the title commands respect — not as a symbol of status, but as evidence of sustained commitment to leadership, service, and excellence.

In its early years, the Manila Jaycees Senate was shaped by a succession of leaders whose influence set enduring standards. They guided the organization with discipline and foresight, ensuring that fellowship remained purposeful and that service was deliberate rather than symbolic. Their leadership established traditions that would define the Senate's character in the decades to follow.

From those modest beginnings, the Manila Jaycees Senate grew steadily into a respected force for leadership and civic engagement. Its story is one of continuity — of friendships sustained, responsibilities embraced, and values upheld. Today, its legacy endures not only in its past achievements, but in the example it continues to offer: that true leadership does not conclude with success, but finds its fullest expression in lifelong service.

FROM MOMENTUM TO MATURITY

In the earliest days of JCI Senate Manila, leadership fell to Ramon D. Bagatsing, a man whose vision and energy helped define the organization's first steps. As the Senate's inaugural president, he approached the task with enthusiasm and an instinctive understanding of the importance of communication in building institutions. One of his earliest initiatives was the publication of The Manila Jaycee Senate Today, a modest newsletter by design, but ambitious in purpose.

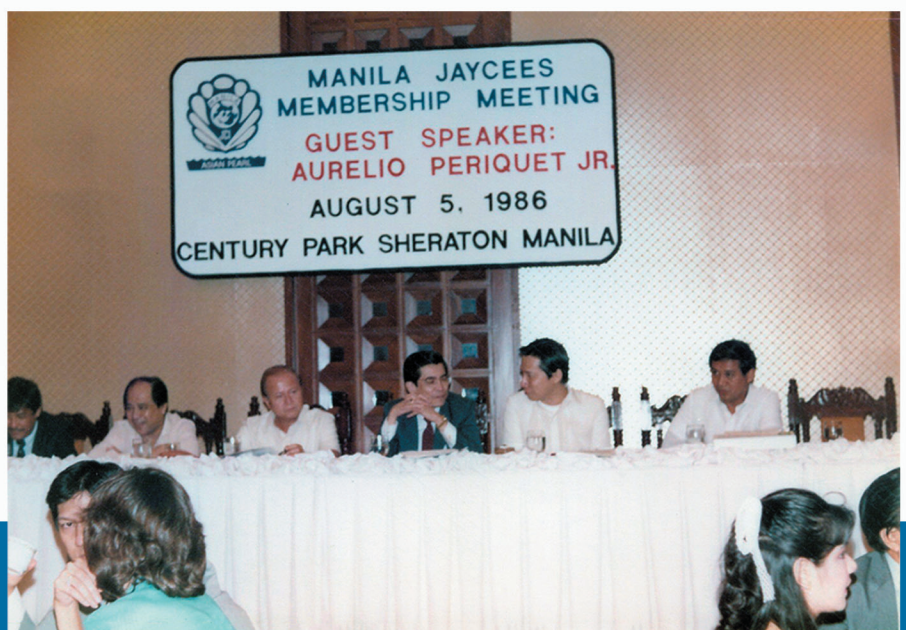
The publication quickly distinguished itself. Within its first year, it earned the "Most Outstanding Senate Chapter Publication Golden Award" from the Philippine Jaycee Senate — a recognition that spoke not only to its quality, but to the seriousness with which the new chapter regarded its role. The newsletter served as a record of activities and aspirations, offering members a clear sense of identity and direction, and projecting beyond the organization an image of openness and coherence.

Yet the momentum of those early months proved difficult to sustain. President Bagatsing was simultaneously carrying the heavy responsibilities of public office, and the demands of mayoral leadership soon took precedence. The dual burden became untenable. After only two months in office, he made the difficult decision to step aside. In October 1979, the presidency passed to his executive vice-president, JCI Senator Salvador V. Del Rosario, a respected management consultant with a reputation for discipline and organizational insight.

Del Rosario assumed leadership at a moment of uncertainty. His task was not to innovate dramatically, but to stabilize — to preserve the energy of the founding period while strengthening the chapter's internal cohesion. He set about reconnecting with senior senators and reestablishing links with members who had become distant from the Manila Jaycee Secretariat. These efforts were deliberate and patient, grounded in the belief that institutions endure not through spectacle, but through relationships carefully maintained.

Under his stewardship, the Senate regained its footing. The focus on continuity provided a steady bridge between the organization's early promise and its future growth. Del Rosario's administration demonstrated a quiet truth of leadership: that progress is often measured not by bold initiatives alone, but by the ability to guide an institution through transition without losing its sense of purpose.

These early presidencies revealed much about the character



1986 JCI Senate President Ting Ayllon hosts a joint GMM with the regular JCI Manila leaders

To be named a JCI Senator is... a distinction of rare standing within the Jaycee movement [and] is not awarded lightly.

The foundation laid during these formative years would prove lasting — supporting a legacy that continued to grow in influence, reach, and impact.

THE YEARS OF STEADY HANDS

In the early years of the 1980s, JCI Senate Manila entered a period of consolidation and growth under the leadership of JCI Senator Reynaldo S. Guevara, a construction entrepreneur whose presidency from 1980 to 1981 brought structure and regularity to a still-young organization. Guevara understood that fellowship, to endure, required rhythm and place. He instituted the first regular General Membership Meetings, held on the last Friday of every month at the Manila Golf and Country Club. These gatherings provided members with a dependable forum for discussion, reflection, and shared purpose.

An avid golfer himself, Guevara extended fellowship beyond the meeting room. He organized a monthly Manila Jaycee Senate Golf Tournament, an initiative that blended recreation with camaraderie and strengthened personal bonds among members. Under his leadership, the Senate began to develop habits that would sustain it in the years ahead.

Leadership passed in 1981 to Atty. Amelito R. Mutuc, former Ambassador to the United States, whose presidency from 1981 to 1982 marked a significant expansion of the Senate's public presence. Mutuc brought to the role a diplomat's instinct for dialogue and engagement. He introduced the Senators' Kapihan, convened regularly on the first, second, and third Fridays of each month, creating a setting for candid conversations between Senate members and government officials on pressing national concerns. Complementing this initiative was the Socio-Economic Affairs meeting, held every Monday at noon, which became a forum for sustained discussion on matters of national importance.

One of the most notable events of Mutuc's term was the testimonial dinner honoring Prime Minister and Manila Jaycee Senator Cesar Enrique A. Virata, held on March 16, 1982, at the Hotel Intercontinental Manila. Attended by more than a thousand JCI Senators and distinguished guests — many of them former Jaycee leaders in government — the occasion demonstrated the Senate's growing capacity to convene leaders and shape public discourse.

The year 1982 would come to be remembered as a high point in the chapter's early history. The Manila Jaycee Senate was recognized as the Most Outstanding Senate Chapter of the Philippines, and Mutuc himself was named Most Outstanding Senate President, honors conferred by the

What followed between 1982 and 1990 was a period defined less by spectacle than by steady institutional strengthening. Leadership changed hands frequently, yet each administration contributed to reinforcing the Senate's internal cohesion and sense of purpose.

In 1982, JCI Senator Pablo A. Tan, a trader in school and office supplies, assumed the presidency. His term focused on stabilization and organization. Among his most enduring contributions was the creation of the first Manila Jaycee Senate Directory, a practical tool that strengthened communication and reinforced the chapter's sense of identity.

Tan was succeeded by JCI Senator Jose Halili-Co, an insurance executive who served from 1982 to 1983. Halili-Co emphasized fellowship as the cornerstone of engagement, introducing regular general membership meetings that helped draw members back into active participation. During his tenure, Senate membership grew to more than 200, reflecting renewed vitality within the organization.

In 1984, leadership passed to Franklin A. Evaristo, a journalist, businessman, and former 1980 JCI Philippines National President. Serving from 1984 to 1985, Evaristo revitalized the Kapihan tradition while maintaining continuity with earlier initiatives. His administration balanced intellectual engagement with social cohesion, ensuring that the Senate remained relevant to both the professional and civic lives of its members.

The presidency of JCI Senator Vicente R. Aylon from 1985 to 1986 marked a shift toward broader national awareness. Affiliated with the Ayala .group, Aylon reinstated the Political Affairs Committee and revived the Socio-Economic Forums, reaffirming the Senate's role as a venue for informed discussion on political and economic developments. Under his leadership, the Senate increasingly saw itself not merely as a fellowship organization, but as a forum for thoughtful civic engagement.

From 1986 to 1987, leadership fell to Atty. Romeo D. Laig, a corporate lawyer and former Manila Jaycee President. Laig focused on strengthening interpersonal bonds through fellowship activities, sports tournaments, and social gatherings. His administration emphasized unity at a time when continuity mattered most.

As the Manila Jaycees approached their 40th anniversary, the years 1987 to 1988 assumed special significance. Under Jose Maria J. Fernandez, a former bank executive and past Manila Jaycee President, JCI Senate Manila co-organized the Metro Area Conference with the Philippine Jaycee Senate. This event laid the groundwork for what would later become The Outstanding Filipino Awards (TOFIL) — a recognition program honoring excellence in both public and private life.

In 1988, leadership passed to Stanley D. Phillips, an American entrepreneur whose term from 1988 to 1989 expanded collaboration across Jaycee chapters nationwide. His presidency coincided with the 40th anniversary of the Jaycee movement in the Philippines, a milestone that further integrated JCI Senate Manila into the national Jaycee narrative.

The decade concluded under the leadership of Fernando F. Vitug II, a building contractor who served from 1989 to 1990. Vitug focused on regularizing fellowship activities and general membership meetings, reinforcing consistency and engagement. His administration emphasized awareness, cohesion, and institutional discipline — ensuring that the Senate entered the next decade firmly grounded.

Taken together, the years from 1982 to 1990 marked a formative chapter in the history of JCI Senate Manila. Through successive leadership transitions, a sustained emphasis on fellowship, and an expanding commitment to civic responsibility, the organization matured into a resilient and multifaceted institution. The foundations laid during this period would support future growth — quietly, steadily, and with lasting effect.

RENEWAL AMID CHANGE

The decade from 1990 to 2000 proved to be one of the most consequential periods in the history of JCI Senate Manila. It was a time marked not by uniformity, but by a succession of leaders who responded to changing circumstances with imagination, resilience, and a steady sense of public responsibility. Taken together, their administrations guided the organization through innovation, challenge, renewal, and reaffirmation of purpose.

The decade opened under the leadership of JCI Senator Firmo O. Liwanag, an insurance executive who assumed the presidency in 1990–1991. Liwanag brought with him a flair for enterprise and an appreciation for the power of public engagement. Among his most ambitious undertakings was a nationally televised special, "Joey, Janet, and Joe Mari," featuring Senator Jose Mari L. Chan, alongside performers Janet Basco and Joey Albert. The program was both a cultural event and a successful fundraising effort, demonstrating the Senate's capacity to mobilize popular appeal in support of its work.

At the same time, the organization confronted a national calamity. The eruption of Mount Pinatubo called forth a swift humanitarian response, and JCI Senate Manila launched its first major relief initiative to aid affected communities. The combination of creative fundraising and decisive service earned the chapter its eighth Most Outstanding Senate Chapter Award, reinforcing its growing reputation for effectiveness and relevance.

In 1991–1992, leadership passed to Nicanor V. Santiago Jr., a Makati City administrator whose presidency emphasized internal cohesion. Santiago believed that institutions endure through relationships, and he set about strengthening personal connections among members. Monthly breakfast meetings, fellowship gatherings, and sports tournaments became regular features of Senate life. These initiatives fostered a renewed sense of belonging and helped anchor the organization during a period of transition.

The presidency of JCI Senator John C. Kaw in 1992–1993 marked a renewed focus on service beyond the organization itself. A leader in the confectionery industry, Kaw launched the campaign "Challenges, Opportunities, Directions," which addressed pressing social concerns and extended assistance to marginalized communities. Among the most notable projects of his term was the sponsorship of the musical My Fair Lady, starring Lea Salonga, with proceeds benefiting victims of the Pinatubo eruption and typhoon survivors. The project illustrated how cultural initiatives could be harnessed for social good. In January 1994, the chapter's efforts were recognized at the Philippine Jaycee Senate awards, further affirming its standing.

From 1993 to 1994, the Senate was led by Faustino I. Gutierrez Jr., a senior executive in the industrial gases sector. His theme, "Involvement: The Key to Organizational Growth," reflected a belief that sustained participation was essential to long-term vitality. Gutierrez presided over the first grand reunion of Manila Jaycee Senators, an event that would become an annual tradition and strengthen ties across generations. Regular golf tournaments and breakfast meetings continued, reinforcing habits of engagement that had become central to Senate life.

In 1994–1995, Architect Francis L. Romualdez Jr. assumed the presidency. While maintaining established fellowship activities, Romualdez also presided over a moment of institutional pride: the election of Fernando F. Vitug II, a former Manila Jaycee Senate President, as National President of the Philippine Jaycee Senate. The achievement underscored the growing influence of Manila Jaycee Senators within the national organization.

The following year, 1995–1996, brought a shift in emphasis under Benigno N. Ricafort. His presidency coincided with heightened engagement in regional and international economic forums, particularly through the Asia-Pacific Business Network. While these initiatives broadened exposure, they also redirected attention. After the APEC Summit, Senate activities entered a period of relative dormancy — a pause that would soon give way to renewal.

That renewal came in 1997, when Robert C. Nacianceno, then General Manager of the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority, assumed leadership. Under his administration, JCI Senate Manila regained momentum through partnerships with the MMDA on projects such as EcoCamp and Disabled Citizens' Week. These initiatives reflected an evolving understanding of service — one that embraced environmental responsibility and social inclusion.

In 1998–1999, the presidency of Jimmy C. Alabanza, an insurance executive, focused on reaffirming the Senate's civic role in a changing political landscape. Most notable was the revival of the "Get Out and Vote" campaign in preparation for the May 11, 1998 national elections. The initiative underscored the organization's long-standing commitment to civic participation and democratic engagement.

The decade concluded under the leadership of Michael I. Barredo, a former Commissioner of the Philippine Sports Commission and head of the Philippine Sports Association for the Differently Abled. Barredo's presidency in 1999 reflected his lifelong advocacy for persons with disabilities.

JCI Senate Manila President Reggie Yu awarded the "Most Outstanding Senate Chapter President" and "Most Outstanding Senate Chapter" for JCI Senate Manila during the 2011 JCI Senate Philippines National Convention in Panglao, Bohol. It was the first time that the awards were conferred to JCI Senate Manila since 1993.

In 1998–1999, the presidency of Jimmy C. Alabanza, an insurance executive, focused on reaffirming the Senate's civic role in a changing political landscape. Most notable was the revival of the "Get Out and Vote" campaign in preparation for the May 11, 1998 national elections. The decade concluded under the leadership of Michael I. Barredo, a former Commissioner of the Philippine Sports Commission and head of the Philippine Sports Association for the Differently Abled. Barredo's presidency in 1999 reflected his lifelong advocacy for persons with disabilities. He organized the "Challenged Cup" golf tournament to support differently-abled athletes and collaborated with the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board on Project D.I., aimed at improving accessibility.

His sustained commitment and energy led to his distinction as the first two-term president of JCI Senate Manila.

Looking back, the years 1990 to 2000 stand as a decade of adaptation and growth. Through changing leadership and shifting priorities, JCI Senate Manila remained anchored in fellowship, civic duty, and service. The initiatives undertaken during these years expanded the organization's reach, deepened its sense of purpose, and prepared it for the challenges and opportunities of the new century.

STEWARDSHIP FOR A NEW ERA

As the new millennium began, JCI Senate Manila entered a period of deliberate growth and recalibration. The presidency in 2000 fell to Atty. Luis B. Pangilinan Jr., Vice-President for External Relations of the Fort Bonifacio Development Corporation, whose leadership reflected a clear-eyed awareness of the challenges and opportunities of a changing era. Pangilinan framed his term around the theme "Looking Forward," signaling an intention not merely to preserve tradition, but to position the organization for greater national relevance.

Central to his administration was the cultivation of partnerships with key government institutions, most notably the Armed Forces of the Philippines. Through collaborative fundraising and community-based initiatives, the Senate extended tangible support to men and women in uniform, reinforcing its commitment to national service. Pangilinan's presidency elevated the chapter's public profile and reaffirmed its role as a constructive participant in civic life at the dawn of the 21st century.

Leadership passed in 2001–2002 to JCI Senator Prospero M. Madamba, a real estate broker and communications professional whose term emphasized both renewal and engagement. Madamba brought renewed energy to the organization through a balance of public advocacy and internal fellowship. Among the most visible initiatives of his presidency was the environmental campaign "Stop Polluting Our Air," undertaken in partnership with Uni-Air and the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board. The project addressed growing concerns over air quality and public awareness, marking an expansion of the Senate's engagement with environmental issues.

Equally important was Madamba's effort to reconnect with members who had drifted from active participation. Quarterly fellowship gatherings and a four-leg Golf Reunion Tournament became vehicles for rebuilding camaraderie and restoring a sense of shared identity. These initiatives helped stabilize and strengthen the organization during a period of transition.

In 2002, leadership passed to JCI Senator Jose Benedicto L. Santos, a painting contractor whose presidency would span two terms. Santos continued the tradition of fellowship through golf activities, but his tenure is best remembered for presiding over a defining milestone in the chapter's history — the Silver Founding Anniversary of JCI Senate Manila. The occasion was marked by a joint fellowship with the Manila Jaycees, held on December 3, 2004, at the Westin

Santos also oversaw the professional revitalization of We Lead, the chapter's official publication, reflecting a broader effort to modernize the organization's image and communications. His administration underscored an essential truth: that institutions endure not by standing still, but by adapting with care and intention.

The presidency of JCI Senator Louis F. Kierulf, a television producer and communications expert, followed in 2005. Kierulf inherited an organization grounded in tradition and poised for broader engagement. His administration maintained annual golf tournaments and quarterly fellowship activities, while contributing to preparations for one of the most significant gatherings in the chapter's recent history — the "Once A Jaycee, Always A Jaycee" Grand Reunion, held on September 29, 2006, at the Centennial Hall of the Manila Hotel.

The reunion drew more than 250 JCI Senators, associate members, and regular Jaycees, bringing together multiple generations under a shared banner of service and memory. The event reaffirmed a core belief of the movement: that the Jaycee spirit, once formed, endures.

From 2007 to 2009, leadership passed to Congressman Ramon S. Bagatsing Jr., who described his role as that of a "transition president." His administration focused on sustainability and preparation, ensuring that the organization remained financially sound while laying the groundwork for the next generation of leaders. Strategic fundraising initiatives supported the chapter's operations and strengthened its institutional resilience during a period of leadership evolution.

This transitional phase continued under JCI Senator Bienvenido Maria S. Gonzalez III, who served from 2009 to 2011. Gonzalez's presidency was defined by forward planning and international engagement, most notably through the chapter's strategic role in the successful hosting of the 2011 JCI Asia-Pacific Conference. The event marked a high point in JCI Senate Manila's participation on the global stage and affirmed its standing within the international JCI community.

Together, the presidencies of Bagatsing and Gonzalez provided continuity during a period of generational shift. Their emphasis on fundraising, leadership development, and international collaboration ensured that the organization entered the next decade stable, relevant, and outward-looking.

Looking back, the years 2000 to 2011 represent a period of measured transformation for JCI Senate Manila. Through successive administrations, the chapter strengthened its civic engagement, modernized its internal structures, and prepared a new cadre of leaders. It entered the 21st century not by abandoning its traditions, but by reaffirming them — adapting with purpose, and continuing its quiet, steady work in service of community and country.

A NEW GENERATION TAKES THE HELM

The new millennium brought to JCI Senate Manila a succession of younger leaders — men who had grown up in a different Philippines, in a different economy, with a different sense of speed and possibility. Yet what they inherited was old in the best sense of the word: a tradition of fellowship, a discipline of service, and an institution that, at its strongest moments, understood that leadership was never an ornament but an obligation.

A turning point came on January 11, 2011, when Reginald T. Yu, a rising figure in the paint and coatings industry, assumed the presidency. The induction was held at One Esplanade in Parañaque City, and the size of the gathering — more than 300 guests — signaled that the Senate was ready, once again, to be seen and counted. Yu's theme for the year, "Manila S.O.A.R.S." — Support, Organize, Activate, Recruit, Strengthen — was not simply a slogan. It read like a program of action, and his administration treated it as such.

Changes came quickly. Membership dues were raised to ₱3,500, aligning with corporate branding policies that had been adopted years earlier. Legal and regulatory records were updated with Manila City Hall, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and the Securities and Exchange Commission. Out of this administrative work came a formal change in identity: the chapter would now be known as "JCI Senate Manila, Inc." Communication was strengthened as well. A full-color quarterly newsletter, The Manila Parthenon, began arriving in senators' mailboxes — a deliberate attempt to restore the habit of connection across a membership whose lives had grown more complex with time.

The year was not confined to internal reforms. The Senate played a central role in preparations for the 60th JCI Asia-Pacific Conference, hosted by JCI Manila from May 25 to 29, 2011. It also assumed the chairmanship of the national flagship, the TOFIL Awards, placing the chapter at the center of one of the movement's most visible institutions. There were projects that were unmistakably of the old Jaycee character — energetic, practical, public-facing. A golf tournament on December 15, 2011, held at Wack-Wack Golf and Country Club in partnership with the "Healing Priest," Fr. Fernando Suarez, raised funds for a small church on Ilin Island, San Jose, Occidental Mindoro. And then came something many thought the Senate might never revive: "November High," a major fellowship gathering held on November 27, 2012, at Seventh High in Bonifacio Global City — an event staged after an 18-year hiatus, drawing more than 200 senators, associate members, and Jaycees, and restoring, at least for an evening, the old spirit of conviviality.

Recognition followed. At the 44th JCI Senate National Convention in Panglao, Bohol, on October 22, 2012, JCI Senate Manila won the top honors: Most Outstanding Senate Chapter, Most Outstanding Senate President, and Best Senate Publication — a sweep not seen since 1993, and a public confirmation that the organization had regained its stride.

In 2012, leadership passed to Eric C. Lee, an entrepreneur in construction materials and real estate. His approach was described as "low-key," and it was — by design. Lee emphasized collaboration, especially with JCI Manila, and prioritized presence in regular meetings over grand gestures, with notable exceptions such as the "Promises, Promises" concert. His term reflected a practical understanding that the Senate's strength could be multiplied when it moved in step with its sister organization.

In 2015, the presidency went to Warren C. Sy, who took his oath on January 13 at Blue Leaf Filipinas in Parañaque. Sy's theme, "More Alive@35," was a promise to inject vitality into the organization, and he began almost immediately with a New Year's fellowship at Greenhills. Fundraising took inventive forms: a limited-edition commemorative watch — 50 pieces only — sold out quickly; and a major golf tournament at Sta. Elena on September 21, 2015, supported the JCI Manila Golden Heart Project for children with cerebral palsy. Even fellowship was made into event — most memorably with a Mooncake Festive Dice Game at a Forbes Park residence, a nod to tradition, culture, and the simple importance of gathering.

The year 2016 brought Phillippe John S. Fetalvero, an automobile dealer, inducted at Green Sun Hotel in Makati on January 26. His theme, "Connecting Generations," was put into practice early with a Chinese New Year dinner and informal turnover at Modern Sichuan in BGC. The administration returned the chapter to outward service through "Share a Smile," a dental outreach program, funded in part by the Senate's golf tournament at Sta. Elena. Proceeds also supported scholarships at the Don Bosco Technical Vocational Education and Training Center, reflecting a practical belief that service should build capacity, not merely provide relief.

In 2017, senior bank executive Gerard Majella T. Dee assumed the presidency with the theme "Bridging Generations." The Senate supported the ASPAC Senate Golf in March and mounted its own major tournament in September. The term ended with a "Roman Banquet" reunion at One Shang in Ortigas — a reminder that ceremony and fellowship, properly done, still had the power to renew loyalty.

In 2018, Christopher C. Ty, also a banker, took office at JCI Manila's induction at the Manila Hotel. Under the theme "Bridging the Gap," his board emphasized connection — through a well-attended Chinese New Year gathering and a lively Mid-Autumn dice game — simple events, perhaps, but often the very ones that keep an organization human.

The presidency of Ericson L. Lee in 2019 placed emphasis on joint engagement with JCI Manila through major meetings and dialogues — an evening of fellowship and a "Homecoming" featuring former Foreign Affairs Secretary Albert del Rosario. The administration launched Art eMerge, a fundraising collaboration with emerging artists, and supported national projects such as Project W.A.T.C.H. and the Kasambahay, Kasambuhay Awards, ending the year with reunions that reinforced the Senate's continuity.

Then came 2020, and with it the pandemic. Jefferson T. Plaza, a technology solutions provider, was inducted on January 28 at the Manila Hotel in a ceremony administered by then Vice Mayor Honey Lacuna-Pangan. Under the theme "Timeless Brotherhood," Plaza's board confronted a crisis that disrupted every tradition the Senate had relied upon. The response was adaptation, not retreat. A series of themed online meetings — broadcast via Facebook Live — kept the organization present: discussions with doctors, educators, legal experts, and public figures. Fellowship moved online as well, through a Mid-Autumn "Dice is Nice" Zoom event. And service became immediate: Oplan Damayan provided food packs for hospitals and turned over 630 care packages to towns in Catanduanes after Typhoon Ulysses.

In 2021, under Winston Laurence C. Wu, the Senate committed itself to operating effectively in the "new normal." The term adopted the framework of E.S.S.E.N.C.E., launched a formal website and official social media pages, held virtual events — among them a Chinese New Year program with geomancer Shirley Chen — and mounted webinars on vaccines, taxes, and business. It also found ways to serve in person where possible, assisting barangays in Manila and communities affected by volcanic activity. The work was less glamorous than before, but in many ways more essential.

2022 saw seasoned industrial sales executive Harry L. Cheng assume the Senate Presidency, with the chapter again organizing physically-attended events as the world emerged from the crippling claustrophobia of the COVID pandemic. Running under the theme "Brothers in Arms," among his key activities included "Oplan Damayan: Karding," the "Buy-ANI-Han" Urban Farming Project, in partnership with the Philippine Air Force, and the launching of the first-ever International JCI COVID Summit, a presentation of best practices during the recent pandemic. This was done in partnership with various JCI sister chapters from all over Southeast Asia. Finally, JCI Senate Manila assisted the leadership of JCI Manila with various projects leading to the latter's 75th anniversary.

As the organization continued forward through 2023, it sought not only to survive but to restore. Under Jasper L. Golangco, the theme "Restoring Traditions" captured an institutional desire to reclaim what the pandemic had interrupted — fellowship, continuity, shared rhythm — while maintaining the expanded reach that online engagement had made possible. The Senate revived the Business Round Table, sustained Oplan Damayan in multiple legs, mounted a successful golf tournament whose proceeds aided the pediatric cancer ward of the Philippine General Hospital, supported environmental initiatives such as the Billion Bamboo Project, and inducted new senators — signs that growth, even after disruption, was still possible.

By 2024, the organization marked its 45th anniversary under Kerby G. Chua with the theme "Unlocking Possibilities." The year unfolded through a cadence of fellowships, business forums, wellness programs, educational donations — 10,000 notebooks distributed to students — and culminating events such as The Big Night and the inaugural Trinity Cup, reflecting a chapter confident in its ability to convene and to act.

In 2025, Randy O. Manaloto's presidency, under the theme "Transcendent Legacy," carried the organization with deliberate momentum. It began with a strong induction at the Manila Polo Club, expanded outward into national and international engagement — support for the 2026 JCI World Congress hosting effort, participation in Da Nang's ASPAC Senate Golf where Team JCI Senate Philippines emerged champion — and introduced the SAGE Awards, a framework that put into institutional form the Senate's expectations of stewardship, advocacy, governance, and enterprise. Fellowship, learning, and service continued in steady measure, highlighted by the Trinity Golf Cup's substantial fundraising for indigent children's medical interventions, the year-end induction of new senators, and the decisive approval of constitutional and by-law amendments — evidence of unity and foresight.

And now, as Manaloto's term closes, the Senate looks toward 2026 and the incoming presidency of Armand S. Valencia, under the theme "Driven@47." A serial entrepreneur shaped by manufacturing and retail, Valencia represents a style of leadership attuned to execution and growth — an energy that, paired with the values reaffirmed in 2025, suggests continuity rather than rupture: a Senate determined to remain principled, relevant, and active in the years ahead.

THE WORK OF LEADERSHIP CONTINUES

As JCI Senate Manila moves further into the twenty-first century, it does so in a world more complex and demanding than the one its founders knew. Yet the principles that shaped the organization remain unchanged. Fellowship continues to bind its members in enduring relationships. Leadership, carefully cultivated, transforms experience into judgment and responsibility. Service remains the measure by which all efforts are ultimately weighed. These values have given the Senate not only resilience, but direction.

What began decades ago as a gathering of former Jaycees has matured into an institution of recognized standing — one whose influence extends well beyond the boundaries of a social club. Over time, JCI Senate Manila has earned distinction as a center of leadership and civic engagement, its record marked by repeated recognition as Most Outstanding Senate Chapter of the Philippines, and by the consistent acknowledgment of its presidents for exemplary leadership. Such honors did not come by chance. They were the result of sustained commitment, careful stewardship, and a shared understanding that excellence is a discipline, not an accident.

The story, however, is not one of arrival, but of continuation. Each generation of leaders has received the organization in trust, adding to it while preserving its core. Under the leadership of Armand S. Valencia and his team, the Senate stands at another such moment — poised not to abandon its past, but to interpret it anew. The task before them is not merely to preserve a legacy, but to ensure that it remains relevant to the needs of the present and the demands of the future.

In the end, the Senate's true record cannot be measured in awards or titles alone. It is found in the individuals who discovered their capacity to lead, in the communities strengthened through service, and in the quiet continuity of values passed from one steward to the next. JCI Senate Manila moves forward with this understanding — steady in purpose, confident in its foundations, and mindful that the work of leadership, like history itself, is never finished.

The journey continues. The legacy endures.

PHILIPPINE AQUATICS

Once upon a time, three young men entered the UP College of Law where they became fast friends, panicked together in study groups, shared fun times and misadventures, and even became founding members of the UP Law Charivari, the oldest and continuously-running law school-based choral group in the world.

In 1986, they graduated, passed the Bar Exams in the following year, and went to pursue their professional careers. Little did they know that they would re-establish their kinship in the Manila Jaycees. One was recruited as a member by one classmate, and another classmate later recruited that member to run in his Board when he ran as President. Ultimately, all three classmates became Presidents of the Manila Jaycees, a distinction that is singular among our members who graduated from the same school or batch or course. Together, they give

Launched on 2025, the SAGE Awards (Stewardship, Advocacy, Governance, and Enterprise) recognizes and honors distinguished members of JCI Manila whose contributions embody the spirit of our esteemed chapter, and leave lasting legacies to the community for generations to come.

SAGE. At its core, the word evokes the image of an individual distinguished by profound wisdom, sound judgment, and a lifetime of experience. As an adjective, it signifies discernment, prudence, and wisdom—qualities that epitomize insightful, thoughtful and impactful leadership.

Guided by this spirit, the JCI Manila Senate, under the visionary leadership of JCI Sen. Randy O. Manaloto, proudly introduces "The Annual Legacy Award for outstanding Stewardship, Advocacy, Governance, and Enterprise (SAGE)." This prestigious accolade seeks to honor a JCI Manila member, Senator, or associate who embodies STEWARDSHIP by responsibly managing resources for collective growth, champion ADVOCACY by passionately advancing societal causes, uphold GOVERNANCE with unwavering integrity and accountability, and drive ENTERPRISE through innovation and economic contribution. These interconnected tenets form the foundation of sustainable progress, transformative leadership, and enduring impact. By recognizing such individuals, the SAGE Award reinforces JCI Manila's mission to inspire transformative leadership, drive meaningful change in communities, and extend the spirit of service beyond the boundaries of our chapter.

Anchored in this year's theme, "TRANSCENDENT LEGACY," the SAGE Award looks beyond the present, honoring trailblazers whose influence will inspire generations of JCI Manila members, Senators, and associates. It is a celebration of those whose actions today will shape the leaders of tomorrow, creating a ripple effect of positive change.

Ultimately, the SAGE Award seeks to inspire individuals to transcend personal ambitions and focus on building legacies that uplift communities and create a better society. This distinguished honor not only celebrates excellence in leadership but also serves as a call to action—urging individuals and organizations to rise above limitations, set new benchmarks, and leave lasting contributions that redefine the future.

A Farewell to a Brother in Leadership

January 1, 2026

In the life of every organization, there are individuals whose impact goes far beyond titles or terms of office. Dr. Romano "Ping" Kamantigue was one such leader—steady, selfless, and deeply committed to the values we hold dear as Jaycees and Senators. And yes, I used the term Jaycees not for nostalgia purposes but as a testament to the very values he held and exemplified.

Initially not known to me personally, but back in 2006 his accomplishments, temperament and work ethic spoke for itself. I first came to know Ping that year before I served as President of JCI Manila. At that time, we were not even Jaycee acquaintances, a slight notch above being strangers. But we were already brothers in purpose. Ping was the first to say yes to serving on my board as Executive Vice President—a decision rooted not in familiarity, but in trust and a shared belief in service. That simple but courageous "yes" laid the foundation for everything that followed. I have always been grateful for the acceptance to my invitation.

Throughout 2007, we worked side by side with a clear and ambitious vision: to strengthen the chapter by embarking on a five-year plan that would culminate in hosting ASPAC in 2011. Ping was not merely supportive of this vision—he was instrumental in sustaining it. He helped shape the direction, translate plans into action, and, most importantly, keep the 2007 board together through the inevitable challenges of leadership. His calm presence, sound judgment, and quiet resolve were often the glue that held us steady even beyond our term in action.

I always felt that Ping had my back. Not in ways that sought attention or recognition, but in the way that truly matters—in consistency, loyalty, and shared responsibility. He was a leader who understood that success is collective, and that unity is built through trust.

When Ping became my successor as President of JCI Manila in 2008, the transition felt natural and reassuring. I was, is and will still be proud of that moment when a member of your Board let alone your second in command, embraced the challenges of leadership to the next chapter. I knew the chapter would be guided with wisdom and continuity. His leadership style was thoughtful and inclusive, marked by a deep respect for people and a sincere desire to serve something greater than himself. I knew he was going to do a much better job and the best person at that time to continue the momentum. And continue he did. Beyond the Presidency, Ping was called to start the SULONG political party as Founding Member and its second President. He topped it off by serving further as Deputy Conference Director for the Asia Pacific Conference eventually becoming part of its Foundation's Executive Committee. Simply put, because Ping was needed, he heeded the call and stepped up.

What began as a strong working relationship soon grew into something more meaningful. Our Jaycee camaraderie evolved into a personal brotherhood, strengthened through years of shared experiences and travels as a group—almost every year—where conversations extended beyond projects, meetings and plans to life, faith, and friendship. Those journeys forged bonds that time and distance could never weaken.

Beyond leadership and fellowship, I deeply admired Ping's faith. It was quiet, sincere, and lived rather than spoken. Seeing him participate in the Imus Cathedral festivities was a powerful reminder that his life of service was grounded in belief, humility, and devotion. His faith informed the way he led, the way he supported others, and the way he remained anchored amid responsibility. But the most admirable attribute, if I was to be bound to limit it to just one, will be his overflowing love for his family – to his wife Dinty and his two boys Tino and Mio. Ping involved them in any and every which way he can to the point that they too became part of our JCI family. He extended his love for our organization to Dinty who eventually saw and realized its aims and goals and lived out its values for both his boys to witness, imbibe and emulate.

That Ping was called home on January 1, a day that marks new beginnings, feels especially poignant. As the world welcomed a new year, he entered into a new and eternal chapter—one we trust is filled with peace, light, and rest. The feast of the Solemnity of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the World Day of Peace is a fitting feast day of Ping in heaven and provides some form of comfort and consolation.

Dr. Romano "Ping" Kamantigue leaves behind a legacy not measured by accolades, but by lives touched, leaders mentored, and friendships formed. For JCI Manila, for JCI Senate Manila, and for those of us privileged to have walked the journey with him, his example endures.

Thank you, Ping, for your trust, your loyalty, and your brotherhood. Thank you for saying yes, for standing firm, and for leading with heart. Thank you for lending your spare time to us, our organization and the very values we hold near and dear in the last 25 years.

You will be remembered. You will be missed. And you will always be a Brother to all of us.
